

INTERESTING, BUT UNTRUE.

An enterprising writer, intent on creating a sensation regardless of facts, and giving Harrison and Cleveland, who are the most prominent candidates of the Republican and Democratic parties for President, a set back, has caused to be re-printed what purports to be a letter written in May, 1890, by General Grant to Roscoe Conkling, Grant, who had served two terms as President of the United States, was a candidate for the office for a third term. Conkling, then one of the leading Republicans of the Empire State, was a pronounced advocate of Grant's re-election. He was at the head of the stalwarts and led the gallant "100" who voted for General Grant in the Chicago Convention. The letter represents General Grant as saying "that there have been exigencies which warranted a second term, but he did not believe the best interests of the country ever did or ever will demand a third term. He felt that the country had amply repaid him for his services, and that to be a candidate or accept the nomination for a third term would be ingratitude and would eventually affect him with the people. Even should he be nominated, he did not think he could be elected, as he seriously doubted whether any man can ever be elected again even for a second term unless there should be some extraordinary emergency."

An opinion of that character purporting to have been expressed by General Grant was certain to have considerable influence in the nominating conventions soon to be held, and it was doubtless issued for that purpose. Now the letter is declared to be a forgery, and is alleged by Clarence Dewey to be a forgery. Dewey says the man who arranged Conkling's correspondence says there were no such letters among them, and George O. Gorham in a letter to the N. Y. Sun makes a like assertion. Gorham was a stalwart and a friend of Conkling, and he says that the latter assured him after the convention of 1880 that he had not received a line from Grant on the Presidency since Grant returned from his tour around the world.

The letter, it intended to defeat Harrison at the Minneapolis Convention, was published too early to accomplish its object. Had it been sprung on the Convention it might, before there was opportunity to contradict it, create a stampede from Harrison to some favorite son and give him the nomination on the ground that no man ought to be nominated, much less elected President of the United States for a second term.

PREJUDICIAL PRESS DISPATCHES.

The report of the proceedings of the meeting held in Virginia City Saturday night to emphasize the feelings of the citizens on the silver question telegraphed by the Associated Press agent at Reno and printed in the JOURNAL of Sunday morning is entirely different from what the Carson Appeal and Virginia Chronicle publish. The Associated Press described the meeting as a Democratic affair organized for the purpose of disrupting the Republican party. The local papers say that a meeting was addressed by General R. M. Clarke and others, who confined themselves wholly to the silver question. The resolutions published elsewhere in the JOURNAL were adopted and a Silver League organized, of which many of the most prominent citizens of Storey county are members.

There ought to be but one sentiment in Nevada on the silver question. The fact though deplorable is not equitable that the State is lost; population, and business is greatly depressed by reason of the unprecedented depression in the market price of silver, which, notwithstanding a large number of mines are closed, is yet the principal article of export from Nevada. The people know the low price of silver is caused by hostile legislation. The Government has derived a profit of about a hundred millions of dollars from the value which it places on silver bullion when purchasing it from the producer and when it places on the bullion when coined. The mine is systematically robbed to enrich the United States Treasury, and that robbery is sanctioned by the party which claims to protect every American industry as well as by absolute free traders of the Harter kind. Why should the people of Nevada wink at this outrage and permit themselves to be arrayed in opposing factions by spokesmen who care nothing for the welfare of the masses if they get the office? And why should the Associated Press permit its agents to misrepresent the motives of the men who are battling for their rights as American citizens by constitutional methods.

The Second National Mining Congress will meet in Helena, Mont., July 12th. Nevada should send a strong delegation to that convention. It will be held after the Republicans and Democrats will have nominated candidates for the Presidency, and if it is composed of men who think more of the prosperity of the silver producing States than of party success it will doubtless give wholesome advice. No Wall street emissaries should be allowed in the Congress.

The Lyon County Democratic Central Committee appointed Col. Pat Quinn, J. H. Roe Jr., W. H. Westerfield, J. Z. Barnett, J. G. Young, Henry Wood and D. C. Simpson delegates to the State Convention and instructed them to neither vote nor sanction the election of any delegate or alternate to the National Convention who will not pledge to vote first, last and all the time for pronounced free coinage candidates for President and Vice President.

Indian Fighting in Mexico.

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 23.—A telegram from Hermosillo, Mexico, says an engagement took place between the government troops, under Lieut. Col. Zapata, and a band of Yaqui Indians, near Los Pinos on the Rio Yaqui, on the 17th inst., but accounts are suppressed by the officials who adopted a censorship over the telegraph lines. The official report just received says a number of Yaqui's were killed and the remainder dispersed, and that owing to the mountainous condition of the country the military were unable to follow. Unofficial reports brought in by American mining men state that seven Mexican privates were killed and two officers, including the commanding officer, wounded. This first engagement was since the late pronouncements of extermination and both parties are preparing for a vigorous and lengthy conflict. There are between 20,000 and 30,000 Yaqui's in the State of Sonora, a greater portion of whom have assumed an aggressive attitude. They are poorly armed however, and as a rule refuse open battle, preferring an ambuscade and guerrilla warfare.

The Tables Turned.

PANAMA, May 23.—The name of the murderer is Madame Raymond and the name of the victim is Lafrance Delaporte. Madame Raymond, who is a pretty brunette and only twenty-four years old, says Madame Delaporte was an intimate friend of hers who had separated from her husband. She herself introduced Madame Delaporte to M. Raymond and soon afterwards discovered they were meeting secretly. M. Raymond and Madame Delaporte had a meeting on Saturday and Madame Raymond went to the rendezvous. She knocked at the door and cried, "Open." Madame Raymond's husband, partly dressed, opened the door and Madame Raymond at once rushed in. She fled and Madame Delaporte, undressed, and repeatedly fired at her with revolvers, and afterwards stabbing her several times in the breast. She afterwards surrounded herself to the police. She was dressed in the height of fashion and wept bitterly.

House Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—A number of District bills were passed and the House adjourned.

Baron Fava, the Italian Minister, made a formal call on President Harrison this morning in company with Secretary Blaine. There were no particular formalities and no set speeches. Baron Fava took occasion, however, to inform the President that the King of Italy, the Italian Government and the people alike were greatly pleased and satisfied by the settlement of the recent difficulty in a matter so honorable to both Italy and the United States. The President replied in substance that he personally and officially was gratified at the return of Baron Fava, whose services in promoting good relations between Italy and the United States, he said, has always been highly appreciated. The President added with much earnestness that he was specially gratified that the differences between the two countries had been settled with honor to both.

The Presbyterian Assembly.

PORTLAND, May 23.—In the Presbyterian General Assembly to-day reports were submitted on the Conference of Assembly Committees with the Directors of the Union Seminary. The Directors of the Seminary asked that the General Assembly concur with the Directors in annulling the agreement of 1870, by which a veto power was granted to the Assembly to be exercised in case there should be a disapproval of the appointments to professorships in the Seminary. A further consideration of the matter was postponed until the papers in the case can be printed and till after the presentation of the report of the Standing Committee on theological seminaries. The other proceedings of the day were the usual reports of Standing Committees and Secretaries of Church Boards.

Senate Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Vest offered a resolution discharging the Committee on Finance from further consideration of the House bill and put wool on the free list and reduce the duties on woolen goods and directing the committee to report the bill back to the Senate for action thereon. A resolution was tabled for the present, appropriating $15,000 for the introduction of domesticated reindeer into Alaska. The calendar was laid aside and the Senate bill providing for the punishment and violations of treaty rights of aborigines, being unfinished business, was taken up. Without disposing of the bill the Senate adjourned.

The Editors' Preferences.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—At Palo Alto to-day a poll on Presidential preferences was taken of 311 newspaper editors and proprietors who are accompanying the excursion of the National Editorial Association. Of those who voted, 149 were Democrats and 162 Republicans. The poll resulted as follows: Cleveland, 117; Harrison, 86; Blaine, 72; Boies, 12; Hill, 7; McKinley, Gray and Gorman 4 each and Scattering, 5.

The Editors.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—The members of the National Editorial Association after making a tour of the State during the past ten days arrived in this city this evening. To-morrow they will go on an excursion to points of interest around the bay. The regular convention will open to-morrow evening.

Horse Thief Found Guilty.

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 23.—The trial of John Clayton alias John Clay, a horse thief under indictment for various crimes, closed to-day with a verdict of guilty. Clayton is the man who led an unsuccessful attempt at jail breaking two weeks ago, in which he received severe cuts in the abdomen. At the close of the testimony to day the prisoner arose and asked the Court to instruct the Jury to find a verdict of guilty without leaving their seats. Clayton belongs to a respectable family near Memphis, Tennessee.

Caved Upon.

SAN RAFAEL, Cal., May 23.—This morning two laborers employed at the patent brick yard were severely injured by a falling bank of earth. They had backed their carts up to the bank and were about to start loading when the falling earth covered them. One had both of his legs broken and another had his arm almost torn from its socket. Probably the men will recover. Their names could not be learned.

Fire at Spokane.

PORTLAND, May 23.—A disastrous fire broke out this morning in the Flour Mills District at Spokane. The loss will probably reach half a million dollars.

Nevada's Weather.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—Forecast for Tuesday in Nevada: Fair, except preceded by showers at Winnemucca, brisk south to west winds, cooler.

FIGHTING FOR THEIR HOMES.

A week ago the Wall Street organ placed the Lyon County Times in the list of Nevada newspapers which advocate a division of the people on all party lines, so that the gold men will be victorious whether Democrats or Republicans are successful at the polls. The Times repudiates the charge that it is leagued with Wall Street by publishing several pointed articles, one of which is the following:

"The people of Nevada who will vote a third Presidential ticket this fall if neither of the old parties put up a free coinage man on a free coinage platform, are the people who are fighting for their homes which they have labored for years to gain, and which at a rapid rate are being wrested from their grasp by the oppressors of the poor. It is not expected that the wealthy men of this State will take such active interest in the silver move or advocate such strong measures as those whose supply of bread and meat is getting short. The latter class is growing larger each day; they see that they have nearly lost their all, and have made up their minds to fight desperately from this time on until they gain their point or go to the wall."

The Reno edition of the California World is in demand these days. So is the Reno correspondent. Several justly irate citizens have their war paint on. The anonymous correspondent is a reptile against whose insinuation courage has no redress.

Edward P. Deacon was tried in France and sentenced to one year's imprisonment for killing M. Abeille in Mrs. Deacon's room at the Hotel Splendide in Nice.

MARRIED.

WATSON-TANNER.—At the residence of the bride's parents, near Bishop, Elko county, Nevada, May 18, 1892, by Rev. John Walker, John Watson of White Rock to Miss Melbie J. Tanner of Bishop.

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of "One Hundred Doses" "Dollars." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits. Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "goodname at home,"—there is now of Hood's Sarsaparilla in more than all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad—no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly. Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. L. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass. 100 Doses One Dollar

SILVER ON THE COMSTOCK.

An Enthusiastic Meeting and Ringing Resolutions

Piper's Opera House in Virginia City was the scene of an enthusiastic meeting of free coinage advocates last Saturday. The merchants illuminated their stores and bonfires blazed in the streets. Dr. E. B. Harris was chosen Chairman and Clayton Belknap Secretary.

General R. M. Clarke addressed the meeting and forcibly and logically showed the necessity of united and uncompromising action upon the vital question of free coinage. The speaker was frequently interrupted by applause.

The following resolutions were adopted: Whereas, The cause of the present depression in mining and commercial circles throughout the country is too well understood to be the subject of further discussion.

Resolved, That it is the sense of the voters of Storey county irrespective of party, in mass meeting assembled, that the time for talk has passed and the time for action arrived.

Resolved, That a Silver League to be known as the Storey County Silver League be and is hereby formed.

Resolved, That this League is not political and its sole object and purpose is to protect our chief industry, silver.

Resolved, That we regard the advancement and prosperity of Nevada paramount to any partisan interest and we solemnly pledge ourselves not to vote for any candidate who is not in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

Resolved, That we demonstrate to the world that the men of Nevada are made of as true and independent metal of manhood as Colorado and like our sister State, we rise above the level of partisan politics and strike a blow for State development and protection of silver by restoring it to its constitutional place in the monetary system of the country.

Resolved, That in order to be armed and equipped for emergency we call upon the various leagues in the State to meet us in convention on this, the mother lode of silver, on a date to be hereafter named, to nominate three Presidential electors to represent Nevada in the electoral college and co-operate with such other silver delegates as may be elected from other States.

Resolved, That each county send one delegate for every 1000 votes cast in the last State election and one for each fractional part thereof over the even hundreds.

Resolved, That this meeting extend its congratulations to the Winnemucca Silver State, Carson Appeal, Reno Journal, Dayton Times, Hawthorne Bulletin, Eureka Sentinel, White Pine News, Belmont Courier, Central Nevada, Austin Advocate, Tuscarora Times Review, Austin Reville, Virginia Chronicle, and such other free silver newspapers of the State as have had the manliness and courage to stand by the cause of silver irrespective of the dictation of party bosses.

Resolved, That these resolutions be printed in the Virginia Evening Chronicle and a copy be sent to every Silver League and to every silver newspaper in the State of Nevada.

The following gentlemen were appointed an Executive Committee: D. B. Lyman, A. C. Hamilton, Milo McMillan, F. C. Lord, A. M. Cole, H. M. Gorham, C. Derby, W. E. Sharon, R. P. Keating, F. M. Huffaker, A. J. McCone, J. M. Kelly, F. M. Edwards, J. B. Mallon, B. Prendergast and John Coleman.

The Fable of the Golden Standard.

Three ships started fairly in a race for human welfare, namely gold, silver and commodities. For 4,000 years they sailed along very well in their relative positions, blown by the winds, supply and demand.

In 1873 the wind "demand," by the gods which controlled it, was withdrawn from the silver ship's sails, and as it had to blow somewhere it all concentrated itself upon the gold ship, which caused that vessel to forge swiftly ahead, leaving the other two behind.

But the crew of gold, while they knew very well that their own speed had been greatly increased, and though laughing among themselves, yet continually shouted back to the crew of the silver ship: "What has caused you to fall behind all at once? You ought to be up with us if you are seaworthy, for we are the standard."

Said the crew of the silver ship: "It is true that we have fallen behind you, for the wind of demand which for 4,000 years had filled our sails, since 1873 has gone to increase yours, but if you will notice, we are not alone, for the ship commodities is along side of us."

The gold men, while perfectly well knowing that their "gold standard" has appreciated 43 per cent beyond not only silver but commodities, yet always speaking from their own point of view, shout derisively back to silver as a "70 cents on the dollar."

The silver men, while they acknowledge that measured by the "gold standard" their dollar is a "70 cent dollar," yet point significantly to the fact that commodities are along side of them with a "70 cent" bushel of wheat.

A "70 cent" dollar, a "70 cent" bushel of wheat and a "143 cent" gold dollar.

The miner has the first, the farmer the second and the bondholder the third. The last is "honest money" and the "standard of value," says the bondholder, who has all of it.

C. A. Nonnors.

"Her Husband."

The Pittsfield, Mass., Journal says of "Her Husband," which is to be played at McKissick's Opera House to-morrow night:

"Her Husband," written by Annie Lewis Johnson, was produced last night to an appreciative audience. The tale is simply and plainly told and is an effective one, the comedy throughout brightening the sad portion of the play."

Frederick Deemling, supposed to be the notorious murderer "Jack the Ripper," was hanged at Melbourne, Australia, yesterday for the murder of his first and second wife and four children.

THE TAHOE ROAD.

Some Attractions for Tourists to Lake Tahoe.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Lamb and daughter, Mrs. Daniel Huffaker and Ellis Ever left Huffaker's for a drive over the new road to Tahoe. At the old Badger mill, about half way to Tahoe, the ladies alighted and concluded to go to a snow bank, half a mile away, and back in the "beautiful" with the mercury at 75 in the shade. They had not proceeded more than a few hundred yards from the road when they suddenly came to a halt and all joined in a scream which reverberated through the canyons to Mount Rose. Two black bears appeared in the foreground and disputed the right of way with them, so they beat a hasty retreat and in their hurry to cross on a log all fell in Glens Creek, a rapid mountain stream, which almost carried them away. The ladies deny that they screamed or hollered and say they are going back prepared to contend the right of way with Mr. and Mrs. Bruin. This indicates what tourists may expect to see on the new road which is being built from Reno to Lake Tahoe. Bears and coyotes are numerous along the route and will be on exhibition so as to give travelers opportunity to see them in native haunts. Deer are also quite plentiful along the road at certain seasons, so that visitors from the East can reasonably hope to see sound wild animals from the stage road as they ascend the mountain to Lake Tahoe.

Telling the Truth.

It's common saying that newspapers lie, but when an editor writes a thing and puts his name to it you may be sure that he is telling the truth. Read this: "We have never before said one word in favor of any patent medicine advertisement in our columns, but having given Simmons' Liver Regulator a fair trial, we do not hesitate to say, that for dyspepsia and general debility it cannot be excelled.—FRANK M. CHILDS, editor "News," Centin, Ohio.

Almost a Fatal Row.

A row which might have terminated in a homicide Sunday night fortunately resulted in a harmless fracas. A bellicose sheepherder had been abusing one William Ramsey for some time. Ramsey objected, whereupon the sheepherder placing a gun at the latter's stomach threatened to disrupt him. Ramsey hit him over the head with a pistol and thinking he had killed him came to town and gave himself up. Wm. Van Buren immediately went to Wheeler's ranch to investigate. The man was only slightly hurt and Ramsey was yesterday released.

THREE Doves.

Seaward at morn my doves flew from
At eve they circled back to me.
The first was Faith, the second Hope,
The third—the whitest—Charity.

Above the plunging surge's play
Dove-like they hovered day by day.
At last they turned and bore to me
Green signs of peace through nightfall gray.

No shore for them, no lowliest land
Their gentle eyes had left to gaze,
'Mid hues of twilight helliotrope
Or day-dreams from heaven-breath fanned.

Quick visions of celestial grace
Littered they wait from earth's broad spaces,
Kind thoughts of all humanity,
They shine with radiance from God's face.

Ah, since my heart they chose for home,
Why loose them—forth again to roam?
Yet lo! they rise! With softer scope
They wheel in flight toward Heaven's pure dome.

Fly, messengers that find no rest
Save in such toil as makes man blest!
Your home is God's munificence;
We hold you but at his behest.

—George Parsons Lathrop in New York Independent.

Thunderstorms at Sea.

An electric storm at sea is one of the alarming experiences to which a mariner is exposed, but as a matter of record it is one that is least fruitful in disastrous results. As a rule few precautions are taken to guard against a stroke of lightning, especially in the merchant service. Ships of war are usually fitted with lightning conductors, a precaution made necessary by the explosives stored away in their magazines. But these safeguards are seldom seen on a merchant vessel, and judging by the extreme rarity of the cases where they have been struck, Jack's claim that he is safer on the ocean than on shore during an electrical disturbance must be admitted.

It is a well established theory that one caught in a thunderstorm should not take shelter under a tall tree, especially if it stands in a clearing. Why lightning should strike an isolated piece of timber on shore and spare it after it has been converted into a vessel's mast is yet to be satisfactorily explained.—New York Times.

Admiration Among Indians.

"Man lives by admiration," and the Indian can admire. His favorite tale, listened to with ever fresh interest, is of a hero who would not enter heaven if his dog were excluded. He has placed among his gods an English general who was both true and brave, and I heard from East Indians of differing views how, comparing European races, they placed their devotion to principle. "The British are the only foreigners who die for what seems right." But the same men, criticizing what they admired for its want of tenderness and sympathy, often added, "The British, and especially the women, keep themselves aloof and alienate the admiration they might hold."—Nineteenth Century.

A Large German Castle.

The Castle of Heidelberg is the largest in Germany. It stands 330 feet above the Neckar river, and was occupied as a castle as early as 1294 A. D. In a cellar in one corner of the ruins is the famous "tun" or monster cask capable of holding 40,000 gallons. This was for the storage of wine used by the nobility who dwelt in this castle. It is believed that the Grand Duke of Baden will abandon the idea which he recently entertained of attempting to "restore" the ruins and convert them into a modern palace.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Value of Pain in Surgery.

When ether was first discovered and used in surgery it was said that to abolish pain would be to change the laws of nature herself; that pain is a safeguard; that it indicates, in cases of injury, the seat of injury, and in some instances the cause of injury; that if men learned to minimize or prevent it at pleasure they might annihilate it altogether, and invent a new constitution in which this essential of danger would be at all times off duty.—Dr. Richardson in Longman's Magazine.

Pandora's Box

brought a multitude of ills upon humanity, so said the ancients; but a bottle of SOZODONT is a well-spring of joy in the family. It refreshes the invalid by cleansing his mouth and fits the belle for the parlor.

Courage and Faint Heartedness.

I once saw a woman faint in a carriage when her coachman was driving past a steam drill and the horses wheeled swiftly as if they would overturn the carriage. That woman on a yacht, when a squall struck it and when every man on board thought his last hour had come, did not even cry out, because her husband had said in her ear, "Don't be afraid; there is no danger."—Interview in New York Tribune.

The Indian Is Waiting.

The East Indian waits patiently; he is weary of the old theories and old promises; he looks out with sad and quiet eyes; he could rise to worship and to act. There is fire behind the quiet gaze, and he seems to ask, "Tell me of an object worthy of admiration." In reply the government often offers "shows"; the missionaries always offer Christ.—Nineteenth Century.

Unprofitable Game.

City Sportsman—Any game here? Jerseyman—Plenty of snipe. "Snipe! It doesn't pay to hunt them. Too small."

"Too small for cook?"

"Too small to hit."—New York Weekly.

"Jenny's Palpit," an immense bowl near the village of Noank, Conn., long known as the "Noank rocking stone," has worn away its base and can no longer be moved.

"August Flower"

Mrs. Sarah M. Black of Seneca, Mo., during the past two years has been affected with Neuralgia of the Head, Stomach and Womb, and writes: "My food did not seem to strengthen me at all and my appetite was very variable. My face was yellow, my head dull, and I had such pains in my left side. In the morning when I got up I would have a flow of mucus in the mouth, and a bad, bitter taste. Sometimes my breath became short, and I had such queer, tumbling, palpitating sensations around the heart. I ached all day under the shoulder blades, in the left side, and down the back of my limbs. It seemed to be worse in the wet, cold weather of Winter and Spring; and whenever the spells came on, my feet and hands would turn cold, and I could get no sleep at all. I tried everywhere, and got no relief before using August Flower. Then the change came. It has done me a wonderful deal of good during the time I have taken it and is working a complete cure."

WAITING TO BE ROBBED.

The Passengers Were All Ready for the Bandits, but They Came Not.

A gentleman from Kansas tells a rather interesting story of a sensation to which he and his fellow passengers were treated a short distance from Vicksburg. The train was flagged at Cleveland, a small station in a comparatively uninhabited section, at which passenger trains are not scheduled to stop. The station officials boarded the train with a badly frightened negro, who informed Conductor Clark that as he was walking along the track about two miles below the station he had seen six masked men working at the track with a crowbar, evidently bent on displacing the rails and dishing the train. They had their ponies tied to trees near the track and every saddle had a Winchester rifle slung across it. The darkey did not wish to disturb them, but as he was trying to steal away unobserved one of the would be train robbers called onto him, commanding him to halt. This was just what the negro did not wish to do, and plunging into the thicket he scrambled through the thick underbrush and over fallen logs as rapidly as his legs would carry him. He had just reached Cleveland in time to warn the station agent to flag the down express.

This was startling news, and Conductor Clark at once made preparations to guard his train against attack. Every light, even to the headlight of the locomotive, was extinguished and Winchester rifles were placed in the hands of the train officials, while the negro porter was armed with a revolver and placed in the baggage car to guard its contents.

Before the lights could be extinguished in the passenger coaches it was necessary to inform the passengers of the reason why such an extraordinary precaution had been rendered necessary, and then it was that some curious scenes were enacted. Some put their money in their boots; others, pulling off their coats, stowed away small rolls of bills in their shirt sleeves. Others appeared to think that the lining of a man's hat made a snug little pocket in which to stow away small sums of paper money. But the disposal of their valuables did not appear to the passengers a matter of such vital importance as the defense of the train and the lives of those upon it. Money, jewelry and watches were quickly hidden away, but when it came to fishing their pistols out of valises, "grip-packs" and hip pockets the business of hiding away valuables was "not in it."

The Kansas man who told the story said that in his day he had seen a great deal of rough life on the frontier, but he had never seen anything approaching such a show of firearms as was suddenly displayed on that passenger train in peaceful and prosperous Mississippi. All the money, he said, on the train would not serve to make the first payment on that grin array of firearms, even on the weekly installment plan. One man had no weapon, but he was promptly supplied by a Mississippian who had three 44-caliber Colts in his valise. The stranger accepted the loan rather timidly and walked to the door of the car with it in his hand. He put his head out into the darkness and the first object that met his eyes were three solemn looking men with Winchesters. It was dark and he took them for robbers. Fortunately he did not open fire. On the contrary, he dropped his pistol, and running back to the middle of the car tried to crawl under a seat.

In the meantime, all being ready, the darkened train ran slowly down the track to within 100 yards of the spot indicated by the negro and stopped. No robbers appeared and then lanterns were lighted and a party of armed men went ahead to search for them, but they had found their escape. The advance guard found the hoof prints of their horses in the thicket where the negro had seen them tied to the sapplings, and the track, though left in good order, gave evidence of having been tampered with. Something had evidently disturbed the wreckers—possibly the escape of the negro, whom they knew to have seen them—but at all events the train reached Vicksburg in safety.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.
